

The Body Story Poetic Inquiry Research Project

Would you like to contribute to...

- an academic research project highlighting the work of The Center for Body Trust® and Body Trust® Providers?
- the ongoing project of fat liberation?
- a shift in healthcare and fitness spaces toward a weight-inclusive health paradigm?
- a transdisciplinary, arts-based research project that centers social justice and empathy-building?

The Body Story Poetic Inquiry Research Project is looking for certified Body Trust® Providers who are willing to contribute their Body Stories.

This research project is specifically seeking submissions from Body Trust® Providers who are...

- women / femmes,
- fat, of-size, or living in larger bodies,
- English speaking and living in the English-speaking West

“But how will you use my Body Story?”

Contributed Body Stories will serve as the primary data set to examine the impact of a weight-inclusive approach on well-being via Poetic Inquiry in order to create empathy-evoking poetry that promotes fat liberation and a weight-inclusive health paradigm.

“But, what about my privacy?”

No identifying information will ever be associated with your specific Body Story in the study, final dissertation or subsequent publications.

“But, what if I want credit for my work?”

Again, for your safety and the validity of the study, no identifying information will ever be associated with your specific Body Story. But, in the submission form, you may choose to be included in a general list of contributors, if you would like credit for your work being included in this study.

Submit your Body Story by March 15th, 2025 at:
<https://forms.gle/7hehbMQbmMT7BqXh6>

This study is being done as partial fulfillment of a doctoral degree from California Institute of Integral Studies' Transformative Inquiry Department.
Please direct questions regarding this study to researcher and doctoral student, JodiAnn Stevenson at thebodystorypi@gmail.com